What Are They Exposed To?

A group of young teenage girls got together for a sleepover. They were braiding hair, painting nails, and watching movies, when one of the girls suggested they try a site called Chatroulette. The young girl had overheard her sister talking about it the night before. Chatroulette is a site that anyone can go on and chat with people around the world through webcam and messaging. However, on Chatroulette, 1 in 8 spins on this site results in a match with someone who is naked or engaging in a sexual act. The girls decided to give the site a go. Within three spins, they were matched with an adult man who exposed himself to the young girls. They were all frightened by the act and thought they would get in trouble if they told their parents. They thought it was just a nice place where they could meet new friends. They all made a pact to never tell anyone about this incident.

DON'T BE AFRAID TO INTERVENE!

Tell youth about red flags. These warning signs include someone asking for intimate images, messages from strangers, websites asking for too much personal information, and more. Be sure to speak up if you hear or see anything. Let them know you are there to listen and talk. Tell them and show them that they can trust you
